Goals of CSSA

- To improve communications among science supervisors, teachers, administrators and boards of education.
- To examine and evaluate curricula in science.
- To improve academic standards.
- To review, update and disseminate health and safety standards and procedures in science.
- To promote and conduct professional development activities for supervisors and teachers of science.
- To serve as a public advocate for science education in Connecticut.
- To represent the membership on state and national issues in science education.
- To act as a consultant and resource to state and local agencies on science issues.
- To promote research in science education.
- To cooperate with other professional organizations for the improvement of science education.

Meetings of the Membership

Pre-Dinner Workshops

You will have the opportunity to join a network of colleagues in attending professional development workshops focused on assessments in science. Topics may include the future of State assessments, creating effective district assessments, facilitating data teams, examining protocols. Administrative CEU's will be provided.

Dinner Meetings

Five dinner meetings are scheduled yearly by the Association. These meetings feature prominent speakers on topics of leadership, supervision, innovative programs, pedagogy and philosophy.

These meetings are partially underwritten by contributions from publishers and suppliers, whose science materials are available for review at the meetings. This allows the organization to provide quality programs and dinners at well below their actual cost, and permits our members to become familiar with new science programs and materials and to meet with representatives of the sponsoring organizations.

In addition, CSSA and the Connecticut Science Teachers Association jointly sponsor the Connecticut Science Educators Annual Conference (October 30) and the Science Awards Banquet.

Nonmembers may attend CSSA functions but are assessed the actual cost of the programs.
